Global fair trade benefits Ohio, the nation; tariffs only hurt us

Phillip L. Parker CAE, CCE president & CEO

Much has been said recently about an emerging trade war for American products versus the imbalance of trade with other countries such as China, the European Union, Mexico and Canada. Nationally, this could seem like a political hot potato. But that said, let me share some thoughts about how a global trade war could affect us in Ohio.

We all know Ohio is big in exports to the tune of $3.3 billion annually. We export all kinds of goods. Manufactured products are common, but don't forget our number one industry in Ohio is agriculture.

Two of our biggest trading partners for Ohio goods are Canada ($2.1 billion) and Mexico ($294 million). We also export $826 million to China and another $111 million to Europe each year.

This output is created or supported by 1,502,600 Ohio jobs. So if you think this issue doesn't spark our interest here at the Chamber of Commerce, please think again. Exports are big business to Ohio.

On a national level, the new U.S. tariffs on steel and aluminum created a reaction from Canada that could lead to retaliation against $12.6 billion in American-made products to our trading partner to the north. Overall, trade with our North American neighbors to the north and south supports 14 million jobs across America. So what we do with our trading partners affects us in Ohio and across our nation.

Our economy has been quite good lately. Some say we just may surpass our longest bull market ever. But if we get into a global trade war, our growth could begin to fizzle – along with exports, jobs and the marketplace.

Let's agree on this if we can. Global trade in Ohio and the U.S. is vitally important to our economy. Right now, international trade is neither balanced nor fair. But let's be smart about how we force others into balancing the trade deficits.

We must try other avenues to convince our trading partners that we are serious about both fair trade and our efforts to protect American workers, American jobs and America's best interests.

Our Chamber of Commerce believes deeply in the principles of the free enterprise system and free trade. But trade isn't always free. What we need is honest, fair trade, and hopefully that can be accomplished without burdensome tariffs.

We must try other avenues to convince our trading partners that we are serious about both fair trade and our efforts to protect American workers, American jobs and America's best interests.

I recently signed on to a letter to the administration in Washington about our views on this issue. Washington must also hear from America's heartland about this subject. Your input is not only important – it is vital. Balanced and fair trade works; tariffs don't.

Montgomery County Prosecuting Attorney Mat Heck, Jr. announced that Lisa M. Bruder has been appointed to the position of assistant Montgomery County prosecuting attorney.

Bruder received her law degree from the University of Akron School of Law in 1998.

She received her undergraduate degree from the University of New York at Buffalo in 1995, majoring in political science.

Bruder

Bruder will be assigned to the Child Protection Unit of the prosecutor's office. The Child Protection Unit intervenes to protect, and in some cases remove, abused and neglected children. Representing the Montgomery County Department of Job and Family Services, the unit prosecutes complaints requesting protective supervision, temporary custody, legal custody, and permanent custody. Whenever law enforcement removes a child from a dangerous environment, the Child Protection Unit is involved.

tion of VTA's new president and CEO, Ty Sutton, who replaces retiring President and CEO Ken Neufeld.

Sutton joins VTA after three years as the inaugural executive director of the Butler Arts Center at Butler University. He brings more than 20 years of arts venue management experience, as well as extensive fundraising, marketing and programming knowledge to VTA. Sutton starts his new position Aug. 13.

"My philosophy has always been that the arts bring people together," said Sutton. 'I am very impressed with the level of commitment and financial support the Dayton community has given the Dayton arts scene, especially in embracing Victoria Theatre Association's world-class facilities and arts programming. With the addition of the new Arts Annex, I believe our venues can accommodate any type of performance and allow us to grow the diversity of our shows while broadening our audiences."

Sutton was chosen after a six-month international search, conducted by leading arts executive recruiting firm Management Consultants for the Arts. VTA Board of Trustees Vice-Chair Chris Wyse served as the chair of the six-member search committee.

The Oakwood Schools Board of Education is being recognized for the eighth consecutive year as a Gold Level recipient of the Southwest Region Ohio School Boards Association Effective School Board munity and a commitment Huddle, OSBA southwest region president, presented the award to board members at the regular monthly meeting on July 9, 2018.

To achieve the Gold Level, a board must complete at least 23 of 26 criteria. The OSBA Southwest Region Executive Committee developed this award to recognize school boards who are doing outstanding work in the region.

McKenzie Shenk, a 2017 Cedarville University Doctor of Pharmacy graduate, received the Nicholas G. Popovich Award from the Indiana Pharmacy Teaching Certificate (IPTeC) Program.

The IPTeC Program is a statewide training program for pharmacy residents, fellows or other pharmacists interested in teaching.

The Nicholas G. Popovich Award is given annually to one IPTeC participant based on his or her attributes, teaching portfolio, character, passion for pharmacy academia and interest in teaching.

Each participant in the program is required to submit a teaching portfolio for review by faculty from the three Indiana schools of pharmacy. Shenk, formerly of Mishawaka, Indiana, was chosen as the award recipient out of 20 nominees. Dr. Zach Jenkins, assistant professor of pharmacy practice at Cedarville University and Shenk's preceptor, encouraged her to consider a teaching career.

"Dr. Jenkins provided me with a lot of tools that helped me navigate teaching and precepting experiences once I graduated and started my residency," said Shenk. "I appreciate that my professors cared about my interests and goals and connected me to relevant experiences as a student."

Shenk completed her first year of residency training at Eskenazi Health, a hospital in Indianapolis. She expects to complete her second year of residency at Eskenazi June 2019.

Google fined

If you googled "Google fines" last Wednesday, nearly 1.7 billion results returned.

Among the top items were New York Times and Wall Street Journal stories on the European Union hammering Google with a fine of just over $5 billion and demands to uncouple the Google search engine and the Chrome browser from Google's Android devices. The company said it will appeal the decision but the EU's demands remain in force, unless they're stayed on appeal.

Google has 90 days to follow the EU's orders.
