President's Message

INCLUSION, DIVERSITY & EQUITY

For more than 112 years, your chamber has been a service organization to the region through its strategies, actions and support of our business community. Over the last decade or more, the chamber has been even more intentional and focused on helping businesses create a culture of inclusion, equity and diversity. These are business practices that we are confident will improve the long-term success of our members and our region.

For many years we have been dedicated to programs and services that not only are representative of our area but are clearly attentive to the needs of a diverse community in gender, ethnicity, geography and more. We stand firmly behind our work which includes our:

- Public Policy agenda
- Leadership Dayton program
- Board of Trustees representation
- Generation Dayton program
- Small Business Services
- Partnership with NCCJ and others

But these last few years, our volunteer leadership and staff have been even more intentional with new programs and services such as our:

- Minority Business Partnership
- When Work Works program
- Executive Women's Council
- Welcome Dayton support
- Premier Health Workplace Diversity Award
- And our latest program ... EMPOWER ... a women's leadership development program

The world and our community are much more diverse and our citizens, leaders and businesses see it. We must help lead the way and be an example for our community to see, look to and follow for direction and guidance. We are accountable for this culture ... as we should be. We don't take that responsibility lightly and will continue our efforts to lead the way in these important changes.

GAINING NEW PERSPECTIVE

A first-of-its-kind surgery gave Travis a new lease on life

Travis Wells hadn't been able to look someone in the eye for years.

He had a severe neck deformity that caused his head to lean to the point where his ear touched his shoulder, making it impossible to walk upright, drive, or even work. His head and neck were in constant pain, and he experienced chronic migraines.

"I had a constant headache for more than three years," Travis recalls. "It was embarrassing to walk around staring at the ground and not be able to look people in the eyes."

The most common treatments for his condition, Ankylosing Spondylitis, didn't help his symptoms. He sought help from surgeons throughout the state, but no one could help him. "I was actually considering going outside of the United States to search for treatment," says Travis. "And then I met Dr. Woods."

WORLD-CLASS BRAIN AND SPINE CARE

By performing a surgery that is the first of its kind, Kamal Woods, MD, literally changed Travis' outlook on life.

"When I first met Travis, one of the things that struck me right away was his faith," remembers Dr. Woods, medical director of Brain & Spine at Kettering Health Network.

"I knew that this was going to be a huge challenge. I reviewed medical literature and could not find any mention of a similar case. We had to go back to the drawing board. But I found inspiration just thinking of what a difference successful surgery would make in this patient's life."

Dr. Woods decided to perform the surgery in three stages, intentionally breaking Travis' neck in four places to straighten his spine.

AN ANSWER TO PRAYER

The patient's condition improved immensely following the first one-of-a-kind procedure, which lasted 12 hours. "It was like night and day," Travis says. "After I left the hospital, I saw new buildings, trees—things I hadn't seen in a long time. I was used to seeing the car dashboard. The whole experience was life-changing."

Travis has additional procedures planned with Dr. Woods to continue correcting his spinal condition, but he is already able to do things like attend a baseball game, see a movie, or eat at a restaurant—activities that weren't possible before the surgery. "I have a new lease on life," he says.

SUCCESS AT A SECOND CAREER

Minority Business Partnership's match builds former Wright State worker's business

By: Vince McKelvey, Focus on Business Contributor

A lot of people say it in a light-hearted way, but for 62-year-old Lewis Robinson it seems to be true: He's living the dream.

Robinson and his wife Joanna Hill-Robinson operate Robinson Janitorial and Floor Care Services in Trotwood. Running his own business is part of the dream -- "I always wanted to work for Lewis Robinson," he said.

But Robinson, who has a friendly, welcoming manner and an infectious enthusiasm, also loves what he does. He's passionate about doing a good job and infuses his business with a personal ministry, offering work to people who need a second chance.

"My ministry is just really to get a lot of guys that's had troubles from the past, just like I had, and get them off the block and get them on the clock," he said. "I always wanted to help someone."

TRANSFORMING A SIDELIGHT INTO A HIGHLIGHT

Technically, Robinson Janitorial is 11 years old, but for much of that time it was something Robinson did on the side while working at Wright State University as a custodian and union steward. About two years ago, that began to change when Wright State offered retirement incentives to qualifying workers. The package included medical benefits, a key for Robinson, and after 20 years at Wright State, "I jumped in line," he said.

Then, with the help of Belinda Stenson and the Minority Business Partnership at the Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce, he began to transform a sideline into his main operation.

The Minority Business Partnership connects minority- and women-owned businesses with larger companies looking to purchase goods and services. At the time, Stenson said, she had no janitorial firms in her portfolio. She knew the Robinsons and was thrilled when Robinson told her he was retiring to focus on his own business. She suggested some steps he could take to move things forward, and, "He followed everything I put on paper to a T," she said.

PERSONAL INVOLVEMENT STANDS OUT

This spring, the work paid off in a big way when Robinson Janitorial and Floor Care landed a sizeable contract to serve the Dayton Metro Library system. Angela Peterson, facilities manager at Dayton Metro Library, said Robinson stood out from the start.

"The initial part of the proposal was written in first person," she said. "It wasn't a matter of how his company can do it. It was how he can do it. His involvement ... It showed ownership, it showed trust, it showed genuine caring. It just jumped out at me."

"I couldn't have made a better decision in hiring Robinson," she added. "They are doing a great job."

The library awarded Robinson a three-year contract for $538,000 a year to service all 19 locations. Crews clean six days a week at the branches and seven days at the new and spacious Main Library downtown, where someone also is on hand during business hours. In addition, Robinson has workers ready to respond if something unexpected happens.

"I keep a couple of guys on duty for those accidents," he said. "We don't want their people doing it because they're not trained to do it. We're trained to do it."

Peterson said the library is saving about $60,000 a year with the new contract, and "I feel like I'm getting a better service ... I get comments from the branch managers on how clean everything looks and how fresh it smells."

LIBRARY CONTRACT A 'MAJOR JUMP UP'

Robinson began the library work in April. Make no mistake, it was a big step for his company. When Robinson left Wright State, he employed six or seven people. Seventeen months later – and two months into the Dayton Metro Library contract – he had 31, including five full-time workers.

"It was a major jump for us," he said. "But with the support of my wife, Belinda Stenson and the entire team, it made me feel real comfortable."

Sharing the credit is typical of Robinson, who also has high praise for his equipment supplier and his cleaning-product supplier. “Angela Peterson has been just wonderful,” he added. “We have a connection ... We’re just a good team.”

Robinson said he has always had an eye for detail and he takes special pride in clean floors and bathrooms. One thing he saw as he toured the Main Branch was construction dust – seven months after the branch’s grand reopening.

“We’ve been taking that off for the last two months and we’re down to almost where I want it to be,” Robinson said in June. “We are an environmentally green janitorial and cleaning company. We don’t contaminate things that we clean.”

EARLY EXPERIENCE HAS LASTING IMPACT

Robinson began doing custodial work 40 years ago, starting after high school when he was hired by Westminster Presbyterian Church. The church, he said, sent him to school for basic maintenance training and helped to set his life on a positive course. “They were so wonderful to me,” he said. “They were just like family.”

That experience motivates him to help others. He talks to people who have been incarcerated and to young people on the corner about coming to work for him. “That’s just been my ministry since I started my business; giving someone a chance because someone gave me a chance.”

Robinson may just be a natural entrepreneur. He’s considering buying a building that would house his company and include rental space, and he is looking to add accounts and continue to grow.

That causes his wife to shake her head, just a bit.

Joanna Hill-Robinson, an adjunct professor of education at the University of Dayton, is learning about business and working to put in place the structures that accommodate successful growth. “I think the business will grow,” she said. “I just have this philosophy about taking care of what you have.”

NEW GRANT FOSTERS COLLABORATION

Robinson’s success is a double-dose of good news for Stenson.

For starters, it involves a partner organization – Dayton Metro Library -- moving beyond diversity on a construction project to diversity on a service contract. And helping women- and minority-owned businesses compete for service contracts is a big priority for Stenson and the Minority Business Partnership.

Secondly, Robinson’s story also is one of cooperation between agencies and that dovetails with a new grant the Minority Business Partnership has received with two other local groups to support minority businesses and workforce development. The $100,000 grant is from the Key Bank Foundation through JumpStart Inc., a Cleveland nonprofit that helps entrepreneurs.

Three agencies -- the Minority Business Partnership, the Dayton Minority Business Assistance Center and the Wesley Community Center – are involved in the grant. They already work together informally – Stenson, in fact, called the Business Assistance Center to help sort out a last-minute certification hitch for Robinson. “This grant will help us solidify our collaborative efforts,” Stenson said. “We’ll be able to be much more strategic and have a better service-delivery model in providing support for minority- and women-owned businesses.”

The local program is being called Pathways and she expects Robinson Janitorial and Floor Care Services will be involved with it. “He is going to be one of our portfolio companies,” Stenson said.

INCLUSION IS PART OF THE CULTURE AT DAYTON METRO LIBRARY

DML named 2018 Premier Health Workplace Diversity Award recipient

By: Holly Allen, Focus on Business Editor

Melding a plan for diversity into all aspects of business operations is not an easy task. It's a conscious effort, and one Dayton Metro Library has embraced.

"Dayton Metro Library is dedicated to diversity and inclusion, which we demonstrate in multiple ways, from workforce development to supply chain, to partnerships," said

Executive Director Tim Kambitsch. "Most directly, diversity extends through our mission, services, programming, and collections."

Dayton Metro Library knows it starts at the beginning and from the inside. In a top-down approach, the Dayton Metro Library Board of Trustees has adopted a diversity policy, signifying the importance of diversity and inclusion within the organization. It has also implemented new recruiting efforts in order to develop a more diverse workforce.

Jen Kadel, the Library's Manager of Recruitment and Retention is leading a new campaign to hire a Library workforce that mirrors its patrons. "We serve every member of our community, and as such, our employees need to not only reflect those communities, but also have an understanding of and appreciation for the diverse cultures, ethnicities, ages, socioeconomics and backgrounds that depend on us."

Employees of the Dayton Metro Library system can see the organization's commitment to diversity and inclusion through the staff's Diversity & Inclusion Committee, which is dedicated to fostering an environment where every employee perspective is valued. The system also provides financial support for more than 265 individual diversity-related training experiences for staff.

Sharon Taste, Co-chair of the Library's Diversity and Inclusion Committee is motivated by the staff's willingness to broach tough subjects. "Leading with civility, we want to make sure the Library staff feel equipped to help all our patrons. Because of this, we spend a good deal of time discussing difficult topics. If we can peel back the layers amongst ourselves first, we can have a positive impact on the communities we serve."

SERVING THE COMMUNITY

Dayton Metro Library works to touch all corners of our community. In order to achieve its goal, the system partners with diverse community organizations and provides services to new Americans, LGBTQIA, detention facilities, mental health services and older adults.

Through outreach programs, Dayton Metro Library can reach people who wouldn't language practice programs, bilingual story times, citizenship information and materials in multiple languages.

"Outreach Services has always been focused on helping vulnerable populations. More than 500 homebound patrons need the library to stay connected; at-risk youth benefit from regular visits from the bookmobile, and refugees and new Americans value the Library's services to help them assimilate into a new society," said Kambitsch.

LEADING THE WAY

In 2017, a panel of judges got to work reviewing applications for the 2018 Premier Health Workplace Diversity Award. Dayton Metro Library's effort to weave diversity and inclusion into the Dayton Metro Library received the 2018 Premier Health Workplace Diversity Award at the Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce's 112th Annual Meeting on April 24, 2018.

"It's such an honor to receive this award," said Executive Director Tim Kambitsch. "It affirms that for Dayton Metro Library, a spirit of diversity permeates our operations and is truly part of our culture."

DML joins a growing list of businesses thoughtfully focusing on creating an inclusive culture. In 2006, the Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce teamed with the NCCJ to recognize organizations and companies that foster an inclusive work environment. In 2017, the Greater Dayton Workplace Diversity Award was renamed to honor the award's first winner, Premier Health.

This year, the chamber is proud to add Dayton Metro Library to the list of recipients. One of the oldest and largest public library systems in Ohio, Dayton Metro Library is truly leading the way in the Dayton region.

CHAMBER BACKS WORKPLACE DIVERSITY, EQUITY & INCLUSION BILL

By: Holly Allen, Focus on Business Editor

The Dayton Area Chamber has announced its support of three bills that have been introduced in the Ohio House of Representatives. They are: House Bill 160, “The Ohio Fairness Act”, House Bill 492 “Women’s Business Enterprise” and “MBE and EDGE Reciprocal Agreements”. These bills encourage employers to champion diversity and inclusion in the workplace, an issue that is central to the chamber’s core values.

Each of these bills brings a progressive tone to the state of Ohio, which is what businesses look for when deciding where to invest. History has shown how legislation can trigger enormous economic development losses. For example, according to its non-profit tourism organization, the city of Indianapolis alone lost approximately $60 million when then-governor Mike Pence signed the Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA) into law in 2015. RFRA states that the government can’t “substantially burden a person’s exercise of religion”. However, concerns over people using the law to discriminate caused up to 12 conventions to pull out of the city, and several businesses chose not to invest there.

“We know the importance of workplace and supplier diversity and inclusion. These issues have been key to the work we do at the chamber, and are front and center in our core values,” said Chris Kershner, executive vice president, Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce. “When we’re recruiting investors and businesses from outside our state, these are the laws they want to see in place. They want to know they’re looking at a state that understands the importance of these issues too.”

The Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce directly supports diversity in the workplace through programs such as the Minority Business Partnership, the Executive Women’s Leadership Council and others. The chamber also recognizes excellence in diversity and inclusion through the Premier Health Workplace Diversity Award.

“The proposed changes these bills would bring fall in line with our mission – to ensure that all employees are given the opportunity to flourish as professionals. We know this is vital to business success here in the Dayton region, and state-wide,” Kershner said.

HB 160 “The Ohio Fairness Act”: This bill would change Ohio’s anti-discrimination laws to include sexual orientation, gender identity and gender protection as protected classes. This bill has been endorsed by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, Cincinnati USA Regional Chamber, and Dayton Area Chamber members Taft/, AT&T, KeyBank, Huntington Bank and Thompson Hine. Status: Referred to the Government Accountability and Oversight Committee on May 1, 2018.

HB 492 “Women’s Business Enterprise”: This bill creates a Woman Owned Business (WBE) certification at the state level, and establishes woman-owned business procurement goals for state agencies. Status: Referred to the State and Local Government Committee on February 14, 2018.

HB 493 “MBE and EDGE Reciprocal Agreements”: This bill authorizes the state of Ohio to enter into MBE and EDGE certification reciprocal agreements with other states. Without these agreements, businesses with Ohio-issued MBE and EDGE certifications are not recognized in other states, forcing companies with these certifications to also secure certifications in the state in which they’d like to do business. Status: Referred to the State and Local Government Committee on February 14, 2018.

INCORPORATING DIVERSE CULTURES TO BENEFIT YOUR WORKFORCE

Mindy Claggett, Cox Media Group, Focus Contributor

Dayton is a mosaic of cultures. Almost 6,600 foreign-born individuals from more than 100 different countries call Dayton home, according to Welcome Dayton, a community initiative that facilitates immigrant integration into the region.

With so many different cultures residing in Dayton, providing pathways to employment, education, health and social services, and justice equality are important issues for a community looking to embrace the foreign-born population.

INTEGRATION CAN BEGIN IN THE WORKPLACE

A first step to community integration is often employment. As a tool to provide for oneself and family, employment is a building block to inclusion, but so much about securing employment can be difficult for foreign-born individuals.

"Within the immigrant population there are professional folks who want to work but cannot use their certification in the United States, and then some people come here who aren't even literate in their own language," said Monica Harris, Welcome Dayton coordinator for the City of Dayton Human Relations Council.

"Language is often a barrier," said Harris. "And employment experience, because they may never have had any work experience in their own country."

THINK DIFFERENTLY TO FILL A BUSINESS NEED

While challenges abound when it comes to hiring immigrants, the benefits are equally inherent.

Not only are turnover rates lower for refugees according to a 2018 study done by Fiscal Policy Institute and the Tent Partnership for Refugees, diverse cultural backgrounds offer opportunities to grow. Harris cites wider perspectives on problem-solving, different communication styles for handling a variety of situations, and collectivist cultures that offer outstanding team-building attributes to the workforce.

There's also the opportunity for workforces to become more internationally competitive. Learning about different cultures often opens global doors and allows access to retail and sales markets worldwide.

The U.S. Department of Labor reports that U.S. job openings outnumber workers -- a first since 2000, when the government started to track openings. Broadening the pool of applicants to consider for open positions might help ease the workforce squeeze many businesses feel.

Find tips for embracing immigrants in your workplace on page 20.

4 STEPS TO EMBRACING IMMIGRANTS IN YOUR WORKFORCE

Part of business success is being on the cutting edge, taking chances and saying 'yes' when others are saying no. If you and your team are looking to onboard immigrant employees as a way to strengthen your workforce, here are some ideas about how to decrease the challenges and create an environment of success for everyone.

1. ACCOMMODATE THE LANGUAGE BARRIERS

When English isn't your first language, communication challenges are ever-present, especially in the hiring process. Monica Harris, Welcome Dayton coordinator, suggests making documents in clear, straightforward language.

"Become more intentional about looking at the lingo and minimizing it," Harris said.

In addition, understanding there is a barrier means you will need to ask more questions for clarification and speak more slowly to facilitate comprehension.

2. WORK TO UNDERSTAND CULTURAL SENSITIVITIES

When cultures combine, understanding the differences helps smooth interactions. Sensitivity to spiritual backgrounds and accommodating breaks at specific times of the day for religious practices is important. Interactions between males and females often vary among different cultures; knowing that and adjusting will help. Eye contact also can be viewed differently – for example, in American culture, it's disrespectful not to look someone in the eye, but in other cultures, the opposite is true.

"Education is one of the biggest things that would be helpful," Harris said. "To get buy-in from everyone, educate all employees in the workforce about differences others might have. Then it's not just a leadership, top-down thing, but everyone is on board."

3. TAKE A CHANCE AND TRAIN

"If you're willing to hire people who don't necessarily have all the skills right away but are trainable, you can invest in training. That will result in much stronger and more loyal workers in the long term," said Harris.

4. BECOME MORE FLEXIBLE

"Flexibility is key," Harris said. "You can plan for certain things to go a certain way, but there always needs to be flexibility and understanding. In general, this is good for all employees."

In addition to flexibility, Harris encourages employers not to make assumptions about immigrants' experience, their country or work history.

"It's a very human thing to be uncomfortable about what we're unfamiliar with," Harris said. "A group of immigrants coming in from a culture you're not familiar with, that in itself can create challenges."

KEYBANK POWERS INITIATIVE TO PAVE THE WAY FOR MINORITY BUSINESS SUCCESS

Holly Allen, Focus on Business Editor

In April 2018, the KeyBank Business Boost & Build program, powered by JumpStart, awarded a total of $100K in funding to three Dayton community organizations through the KeyBank Center for Technology, Innovation and Inclusive Growth.

Together, the Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce's Minority Business Partnership, the Dayton Minority Business Assistance Center and the Wesley Community Center will launch Pathways, a business and workforce development initiative designed to build a pipeline of high-performing minority businesses and create new jobs.

The Minority Business Partnership will lead the collaborative. Other partners include the Dayton Area Chamber's 29 Committed Buying Organizations, the University of Dayton's Crotty Center for Entrepreneurial Leadership, The Entrepreneurs Center and Small Business Development Centers.

"We are very excited to partner with JumpStart and the KeyBank Business Boost & Build program," said Belinda Stenson,

Director for the Minority Business Partnership for the Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce. "This collaboration makes natural sense as part of our shared mission to build a strong community full of thriving minority- and women-owned businesses and access to good jobs."

"These three organizations are such important pieces of our community," said KeyBank Dayton Market President Joey Williams. "We are proud to be able to support their collaboration in a way that will help drive business growth and job creation."

Funded by a grant from the KeyBank Foundation in 2017, the KeyBank Business Boost & Build program is designed to stimulate economic growth in Ohio and Upstate New York by helping startups and small businesses grow and preparing the workforce for the needs of those companies.

2018 GENERATION DAYTON DAY

Sponsored by: Brixey & Meyer

Generation Dayton Day took on a singular focus this year, for the first time since its inception. On May 5, 2018, nearly 90 young professional volunteers turned their focus from their careers to the region's food insecurity problem. In an effort to tackle this issue, Generation Dayton volunteers chose a handful of non-profits that help fill the bellies of thousands of people in the Miami Valley.

Eager volunteers gathered at the Salvation Army's Kroc Center for lunch, bringing with them canned food items to be donated to The Food Bank. In all, Generation Dayton volunteers donated 405 lbs. of food before the day of giving back began.

Non-profits served on Generation Dayton Day 2018:

- Daybreak
- East End

PONG FOR A PURPOSE

Leadership Dayton Class of 2018 supports addiction recovery with class project

Each Leadership Dayton class leaves its lasting mark on the community through a class project. Class members are given little guidance when choosing a project, allowing the class to come to a consensus as a group. Over the years, these projects have ranged from book drives to community services days and social media campaigns. Below is an introduction to the project completed by this year's graduating class.

By: Jodi Long, ADAMHS, Leadership Dayton Class of 2018 Representative

For its class project, Leadership Dayton Class of 2018 coordinated a community wide ping pong tournament known as "Pong for a Purpose".

When class member Michael Allen of Northwestern Mutual suggested the concept of a ping pong tournament fundraiser, no one realized how successful it could be. Hosting the tournament created an opportunity for every member to showcase their strengths and talents from planning to marketing to donor sponsorships to large event execution.

The tournament had competitive and non-competitive brackets.

"Pong for a Purpose was a huge success," Allen said. "We had 120 people playing ping pong to raise $18,800 for addiction recovery groups in the area."

The proceeds from the class project will benefit 5 local addiction recovery clubs known as the Recovery Alliance of Montgomery County Ohio (RAMCO). The funds will be managed by the Greater Dayton Brain Health Foundation on behalf of RAMCO. The five recovery clubs include Alco Aides, Westside Club, Dayton Fellowship, Families of Addicts, and the Recovery Café. RAMCO supports individuals and their families affected by opioid and other substance addictions. Addiction recovery services was important to the class as several class members have been personally impacted by the opioid crisis.

"The class believes by supporting people in recovery, we are also supporting local employers' human capital needs. Treatment works, people recover, and people in recovery become great employees. We believe by supporting local recovery efforts, long term, we are supporting workforce development in the Dayton/Montgomery County region," said Jodi Long, Leadership Dayton Class of 2018 representative.

If you would like to learn more about RAMCO, please visit mccadamhs.org and click on "support groups" from the home page.

HEALTH AND WELLNESS PROGRAMS BENEFIT YOU AND YOUR EMPLOYEE. HERE'S WHY.

When your employees have the right tools and resources to improve their health, it helps them be more productive, and improves your bottom line. Offering health and wellness programs to your employees can result in:

- Increased engagement in their health care. Offering health care options can empower your employees to take their health into their own hands. In fact, according to the chamber partner Anthem Blue Cross Blue Shield, 93 percent of people who used the Anthem 24/7 NurseLine followed the advice they received to address health issues.
- Lower cost of care. According to Health Affairs, a leading journal of health policy thought and research, medical costs could fall $3.27 for every dollar spent on wellness programs.
- Healthier, more productive employees. Absenteeism costs fall by about $2.73 for every dollar spent on wellness programs.
- Better employee retention and recruitment. Businesses know that when they're competing for talent, soft touches such as wellness programs go a long way. A 2018 Best Practices in Health Care survey done by Willis Towers Watson, a leading global advisory, brokerage and solutions firm, revealed that 72 percent of companies plan to use their wellness program as a competitive advantage in the next three years to attract a high-performing workforce.

Where to start

The Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce's partnership with Anthem makes implementing a wellness program simple and affordable. There's a program for every employee. Here are just ten of Anthem's many health and wellness programs:

- 24/7 NurseLine: Access to trained registered nurses any time of the day or night for answers to health questions, to help understand symptoms, and to help decide what type of care may be needed.
- Future Moms: Personalized support and guidance from registered nurses for moms-to-be to help them have a healthy pregnancy, a safe delivery and a healthy baby.

- ConditionCare: Extra support for asthma, diabetes, heart disease, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) or heart failure. A nurse coach can answer questions and help your employees reach their health goals based on their doctors' care plans.
- ComplexCare: Extra care for a serious health conditions from a nurse coach who will help answer your employee's questions, work to coordinate their care, and help them effectively use their health benefits.
- MyHealth Coach: One-on-one professional advice from an experienced health coach for your employee or their family. Topics range from general wellness information to more serious issues like a chronic illness or help with medications.
- Healthy Lifestyles: A personalized well-being plan and custom trackers that help your employees manage their physical and mental health.
- Behavioral health resources: Licensed mental health professionals are available 24/7 to help your employees deal with challenges they may be having.
- MyHealth Advantage: This program looks at your employee's claims to find ways to help them improve their health and save money.

Ready to implement a new health and wellness program at work? For more information about how Anthem's health and wellness programs could benefit your company and your employees, contact your broker or Anthem account manager. Or, contact the chamber via DaytonChamber.org.

THE PRESIDENTS CLUB OF DAYTON HONORS JENELL ROSS WITH TOP VOLUNTEER AWARD

Article submitted by The Presidents Club of Dayton

The Presidents Club of Dayton has announced that Jenell R. Ross is the 68th recipient of the region's 2018 Citizen Legion of Honor award. The award, given every year since 1951, is the oldest, most continuous and prestigious recognition of volunteer servant leadership in the Dayton region.

Jenell Ross is the President of Bob Ross Auto Group, a second-generation leader of the area's 44-year business where she accepted that role in 1997. Ms. Ross has successfully guided that multiple-franchise dealership where she has also served as a member of the National Automobile Dealers Association, the National Association of Minority Automobile Dealers, General Motors and Chrysler Minority Dealers Associations; and served as the 2013 Chairwoman of The American International Automobile Dealers Association (AIADA) as the first African American woman to hold that office.

Ms. Ross has been very active in our community, serving on numerous boards including the Dayton Performing Arts Alliance, Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce; Dayton Development Coalition, Dayton/Montgomery County Convention & Visitors Bureau, Central State University Foundation Board and many others. She is currently on the Cincinnati Branch of the Federal Reserve Board of Cleveland, the Board of the University of Dayton and the Minority Business Partnership of the Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce.

Jenell established the Norma J. Ross Foundation in honor of her mother who lost her battle with breast cancer in 2010. She has continued to volunteer, work and support education awareness of breast cancer and has been an ardent fundraiser for the American Cancer Society for many years.

Ms. Ross has been publically recognized many times over the years for her professional and volunteer activities and services, including the Dayton Daily News' Ten Top Women of Dayton award, the Better Business Bureau Torch Award; YWCA's Woman of Influence Award, Dayton Business Journal's Outstanding Woman and 50 Most Influential Women awards, Barbara Cox Automotive Woman of the Year, Urban League Pillar Award and many others.

Jenell is married to Dr. Anthony Hall and lives in Centerville.
